Menu

Beyond will, character and vision, McHugh's rapport with food now instinctively insists on a purity of natural ingredients and hands-on, unadulterated cooking methodology that enhanced his own healing process. His from-scratch focus and his conscious use of ingredients proven to empower the human body – like Blood Orange, Sweet Potato, and Cauliflower – unites science with art, resulting in a purposeful, powerful, seasonally-dynamic menu with dishes such as Sweet Potato Agnolotti with Bourbon Brown Sugar and Sage and Slow Cooked Heritage Hog with Smoked Andouille and Okra.

Charcuterie Boards

A driving philosophy of Cured is an appreciation of life. McHugh has found a way to implement “gastronomic giving” by donating $1 from every charcuterie board order to a different charity each quarter. Using locally sourced meats from South Texas Heritage Pork and Compart Farms, McHugh emphasizes his delicate, time-honored curing process, taking anywhere from 3-12 months depending on the cut of meat.

Beer & Spirits

The 12-seat bar, which wraps around the front-facing charcuterie case and century-old cast iron, gold-leaf vault, features select lineup of craft cocktails, made with McHugh's signature care and attention to detail – from house-made bitters in the Starter Kit to the infused liquors displayed prominently in glass jugs lining the bar. The liquor and beer program has a strong focus on Texan and southern brands.

Happy Hour

Happy Hour is offered at the bar Monday through Saturday from 3-6PM with half-priced house cocktails, beer, wine by the glass and Charcuterie / select daily menu items. Ball & Biscuit Happy Hours are offered weeknights, featuring a daily biscuit paired with a cocktail in a high ball glass, like the Heirloom Tomato, Garlic Aioli & Arugula Biscuit paired with the “Rain Water” high ball with Gin, Grapefruit Bitters & Basil.

Venue

In the century-old building that once housed the famed Pearl Brewing Company president's headquarters, also affectionately dubbed the “Jewel Box,” Cured stands as a beacon to the days in which time-honored care and attention to detail could be seen in everything from the ornate molding of a cast iron table leg, to the quality of a fine, from-scratch meal. The measures taken to preserve the integrity of the building have created a uniquely distinct atmosphere that resonates deeply with McHugh's own approach to go back to our roots – from the American farm, the community table. From the reclaimed longleaf floors salvaged from an old Tobacco warehouse, to the original tiles in the foyer, the exposed walls, ornate ceiling tins, and even the repurposed administrative desk in the men's bathroom, which now serves as a sink.
